Knowledge is not purged of emotion. It is when scientist is at his best that his emotions overwhelm him. A feelings' anesthesia is detrimental to a scientist, for example, when making weapons of mass destruction or when making very dangerous products.

It's about writing down your emotions with a poem in order to understand and spread them. We can then work normally having understood the world, after having read back ourselves. It's worse to act for an immediate profit because that's what finance expects.
